A Pathway to a Blue Miracle

Twenty years ago, things were not the same.
We were divided; by colour and by country. Different sides of the same river.
We were the generation which held the Earth's future in the palms of our hands.
We were broken fragments of one world.
We were fighting against our brothers to satisfy our thirst.

A decade later, the tides changed for the better.
We cherished every drop.
We prevented the flow of red, and replaced it with blue.
We started to use pens instead of guns and swords.
We shared in peace, and in peace did we live.
We made friends, we saved lives, we triumphed.

Today we are standing side by side thriving on our mother Earth's treasure;
We can easily access safe drinking water.
We respect each other regardless of genders, and races.
We are sharing water with equity and equality.
We are no longer the defiant children.
Our minds are wide open to a better tomorrow.
